

1

We have seen that the work of contemporary artists deals with issues of social identities and human inter-relationships, ranging from everyday practices to global political issues. Artists are engaging with issues, experiences and realities of their time. They are constantly redefining art practice ae well as how we understand the art work and the artist. When we turn to art education in schools we find a rather different picture of practice.