11. Other information

(1) Our response to applicants with influenza and other infectious diseases

★ Notes regarding infectious diseases for which attendance must be suspended under the School Health and Safety Act

In principle, applicants who have contracted and have yet to recover fully from any infectious diseases for which school attendance must be suspended under the School Health and Safety Act (influenza, measles, chicken pox, novel coronavirus, etc.) are requested to refrain from taking examinations due to the risk of disease transmission to other examinees, exam proctors, and others.

However, this does not apply if a physician has determined that the case does not involve the risk of infection.

Note that the University will not take any special measures, such as holding additional entrance examinations, and that screening fees will not be refunded, even if an applicant refrains from taking examinations for the reasons above. Please do all that you can to maintain your health ahead of the examinations.

(2) Entry visa to Japan

Applicants who arrive in Japan on a short-term visa to take entrance examinations must return to their home countries temporarily to apply for a student visa at their local Japanese embassy or consulate.

If you wish to ask the University to apply on your behalf for a certificate of eligibility for residence, submit the required documents when completing admission procedures.

* Take care not to submit duplicate applications for certificates of eligibility for residence. This may happen in certain cases—for example, if you are also accepted at another university.
