[II] Translate the following passage into Japanese.

The period between childhood and manhood is full of difficulties and dangers, under the most favourable circumstances; and, even among the well-to-do, who can afford to surround their children with the most favourable conditions, examples of a career ruined, before it has well begun, are but too frequent. Moreover, those who have to live by labour must be shaped to labour early. The colt that is left at grass too long makes but a sorry draught-horse, though his way of life does not bring him within the reach of artificial temptations. Perhaps the most valuable result of all education is the ability to make yourself do the thing you have to do, when it ought to be done, whether you like it or not; it is the first lesson that ought to be learned; and, however early a man's training begins, it is probably the last lesson that he learns thoroughly.

Thomas. H. Huxley, 'Technical Education' (1877), Science and Education (Collected Essays, Vol.III), Macmillan and Company, 1895, pp.413-14

[Notes: colt = a young male horse draught-horse = a horse bred for hard tasks such as drawing a heavy cart artificial = characterised by sophisticated processes rather than natural development]
